Public Transit Deficiencies in the Mira Mesa Community Plan

The Mira Mesa Community Plan was adopted by the San Diego City Council in December 2022. The Mira Mesa Community Planning Group made a set of recommendations to correct deficiencies in the Community Plan. Those deficiencies include insufficient public facilities; inconsistencies with City standards, unmitigated impacts and wishful thinking. The complete set of recommendations can be found at this link. This is the third in a series of newsletter articles discussing these deficiencies and recommendations for correcting them. The transit recommendation is:

> Under "Guiding Principles" the Plan says, "A transportation network ensures safe, accessible, and efficient travel with a convenient, frequent, and user-friendly public transit network." Currently the transit network is very limited and there is no funding assured to improve it. The Plan assumes that it will work.
> An endpoint analysis needs to be done to ensure that destinations throughout San Diego are reachable in a reasonable amount of time. Funding for the study and transit need to be provided.

This is perhaps the best example of "wishful thinking" in the Community Plan. There are many cities with excellent transit systems that are constructed so that residents can rely on transit for most of their transportation needs. Examples include New York City, Tokyo, London, Vienna, and most other major European cities. San Diego, however, is not currently one of them. There are some routes within San Diego for which transit does work. Transit to and from downtown, for example, has frequent and reliable transit. This is the best way to get downtown for jury duty or for a City Council meeting. Many buses leave from the transit station at Miramar College. However, many widely used locations within the City are not accessible by transit in a reasonable amount of time.

An "endpoint analysis" means a study that looks at the time and effort required to get from one point in Mira Mesa to any other point in the City, particularly commonly used destination points. If the City can develop a transit network that allows people to get where they need to go in a reasonable amount of time, they will use it. But people are not going to use a transit system if it takes twice as long as driving or requires multiple connections and long walks.

The City is counting on residents and employees using transit in order for the Community Plan to work. For example, they are planning to reduce Mira Mesa Blvd from three lanes to two, with the third lane turning into a dedicated transit lane. With even the current traffic on Mira Mesa Blvd, let alone with the population increase planned, that could bring our major traffic artery to a dead stop. The only way this works is with the implementation of a far better transit system.

Hello Neighbors,

The past month has been busy at City Hall. In April, Mayor Todd Gloria released his Proposed Fiscal Year 2025 Budget. Throughout May, the Budget Review Committee has been in session almost daily to dive into the details of each department's budget. As Chair of the Budget Review Committee, I am committed to working with Mayor Gloria and my Council colleagues to pass a financially responsible budget that prioritizes the City's most urgent challenges: fixing our roads, reducing homelessness, and strengthening core neighborhood services. Thank you to everyone who attended our Budget Town Hall in District 6 and to the Independent Budget Analyst's office for spending the evening with us. We know your time is limited, and your participation and input are invaluable to shaping our City's future! The final budget proposal will be brought before the City Council for final approval and consideration on June 11th. You can find more information on the entire budget review process at www.sandiego.gov/cd6-budget.

Our Community Team continues working hard to serve the Mira Mesa Community. We're thrilled to partner with Miracle Babies on June 8th for a diaper distribution event in Mira Mesa. Miracle Babies is an incredible local nonprofit supporting perinatal mothers and their families during their time of need by providing transportation, mental health, care packages, and other supportive services. For more information, visit: https://miraclebabies.org/calendar-event/diaper-distribution-june-08-2024-mira- mesa

There are also several important updates that I am excited to share. The County of San Diego recently announced that, as part of its upcoming proposed budget, it will invest an additional $2.5 million in revitalizing the Mira Mesa Epicentre. This news would bring the County's total investment to $10.5 million if this final allotment is approved in June. These funds will transform this aging facility to offer innovative youth programming, enhanced recreation entertainment opportunities, and increased community safety. An agreement finalizing this innovative partnership between the City and County that we anticipate to be in front of both legislative bodies for approval this summer. More updates to come!

Here is some more good news: The Mira Mesa Community Park Phase II project is coming before the San Diego City Council for approval on June 3rd. This exciting project includes new basketball courts and an aquatic center. Wagenheim Neighborhood Park Joint Use Facility is currently in its final construction phase; the City successfully installed sod for the sports fields, and it is presently in its 90-day establishment period. We anticipate that the newly upgraded facility will be open to the public by the July 4th holiday.

Thank you all for being an active part of our community. We look forward to seeing you at local upcoming events such as the Lao Food Festival in Mira Mesa Community Park on June 22 & 23rd.

Warm regards, Councilmember Kent Lee

As always, if you have any concerns, our office can help. Don't hesitate to contact us at KentLee@SanDiego.gov.

Republican Leaders Jones and Gallagher Emphasize Support for Prop 47 Repeal

On May 24th, Senate Minority Leader Brian Jones (R-San Diego) and Assembly Republican Leader James Gallagher (R-Yuba City) issued the following statement after California lawmakers approved several bills aimed at targeting retail theft without addressing Proposition 47, which is a major culprit of California's current crime wave:

"While the recent passage of a handful of bills aimed at addressing retail theft is encouraging, these measures still miss the mark by avoiding any reform to Prop 47," said Leader Jones and Leader Gallagher. "Prop 47 has been a disaster, leading to rampant theft and crime across the state. Unfortunately, Democrat politicians are too prideful to admit their mistake with Prop 47, and therefore, they continue to deny the desperate need for reform.

"Republican lawmakers support progress, which is why we back the recent crime-fighting measures passed by the Legislature this week. However, our support does not waver our firm commitment to repealing Prop 47 at the ballot box. We urge the proponents of the ballot measure to withstand the pressure from Democrat politicians to withdraw the ballot measure and do what is right for our state. Voters deserve the chance to voice their opinions and fix our broken laws that protect criminals and deny justice to victims."

Dear Neighbor,

I remain committed to addressing homelessness with the urgency that the crisis demands. Our strategic shelter plan includes short-, medium- and long-term solutions and is continuously being updated.

We are investing in homelessness services, but we need the continued support from the state, which is why I have been leading a push to restore the Homeless Housing, Assistance, and Prevention (HHAP) funding in the state's Fiscal Year 2025 budget.

California's Big City Mayors, a coalition of mayors from the state's 13 biggest cities that I chair, are united in urging state legislators to restore HHAP funding to help us continue our vital work in addressing homelessness.

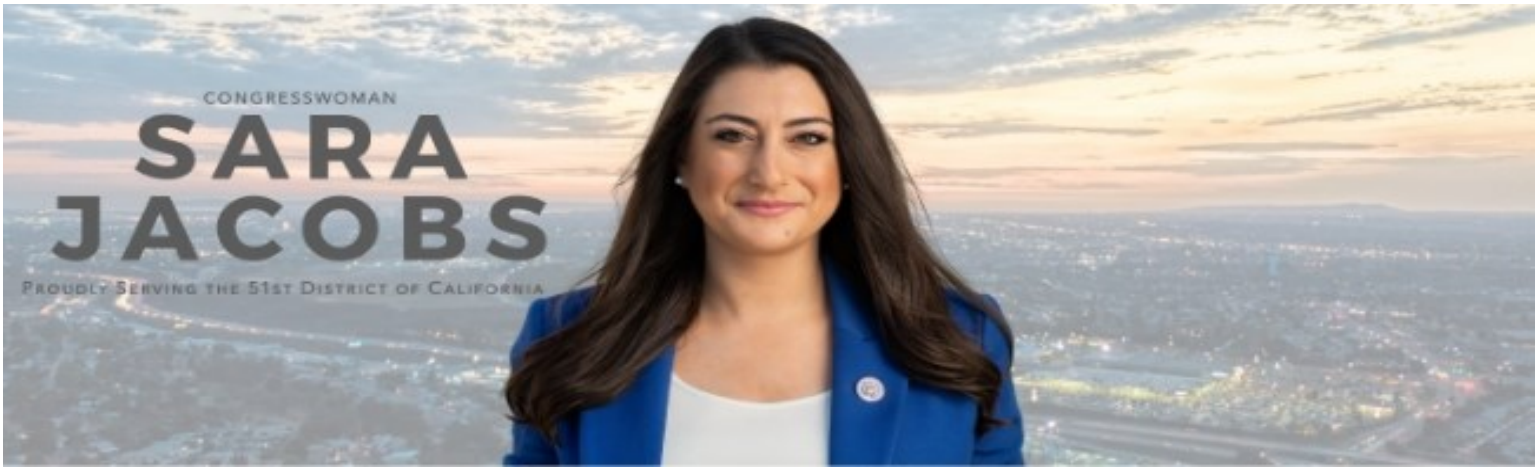
California's big cities have created 15,772 shelter beds — nearly 100% of which are full every night — HHAP funding. The program also has placed 42,215 people into temporary and permanent housing. Cities are using HHAP to support shelters, rental assistance, and permanent housing projects.

California's 13 largest cities have state-approved plans with aggressive goals to reduce unsheltered homelessness by 16% by 2025, and there is no question that these funds are essential to helping us reach that goal.

Cities like San Diego are investing more local finds than ever, and the data show our efforts are starting to turn the tide on this crisis. Without HHAP, we risk undoing the progress we've made.

We are urging state legislators to restore $1 billion for HHAP 6 in the budget to help us continue making a difference in the lives of thousands of Californians every single day. There is no more important budget priority for the State of California.

As always, it's an honor to serve as your Mayor.



Dear Friend,

Every home should have access to high-speed internet. That's why I've been so proud to support President Biden's Affordable Connectivity Program (ACP), which has helped over 23 million households across the country save about $30-75 every month on their internet bills.

But unfortunately, at the end of April, conservatives let this funding expire.

Over two-thirds of households who used the ACP had either unreliable or non-existent internet access before enrolling – so failing to reinstate the ACP is devastating for so many families. High-speed internet is essential for kids to do their homework, adults to find jobs, families to access health care, stay connected to loved ones, and so much more.

That's why I was proud to vote for the Bipartisan Infrastructure Bill – which funded ACP and helped over 250,000 families in San Diego save on their internet bills – and why I'm proud now to support the bicameral and bipartisan Affordable Connectivity Program Extension Act to extend this funding.

Everyone in San Diego and all across the country deserves high-speed internet access, so I'll keep fighting to reinstate these important investments in our community.

Thanks for reading!

Warmly,

Sara Jacobs

Supervisors Vote to Invest in 120-Bed Treatment Facility

Supervisors Vote to Invest in 120-Bed Treatment Facility

Supervisor Lawson-Remer: 'This will help us make progress' on the opioid crisis

Helping people struggling with addiction and tackling the fentanyl crisis were top of mind today as the County Board of Supervisors voted to invest in a new substance use treatment facility.

"Drug addiction is ruining too many lives, and this facility will help us make progress on this crisis, particularly as it relates to illicit opioids that are sweeping through our communities," said Supervisor Terra Lawson-Remer, vice chair of the Board of Supervisors. "People suffering from addiction shouldn't be left to die in the streets. This is a vote to get people the care we need and improve our neighborhoods for everyone."

The Substance Use Residential and Treatment Services (SURTS) facility, located at 2300 East 7th Street in National City, consists of two buildings constructed in the 1960s and 1980s totaling approximately 33,000 square feet. The buildings are currently vacant, but were most recently used for a 120-bed substance use treatment facility. The County plans to use the SURTS facility to provide an array of substance use treatment services. Significant repairs, improvements, and code upgrades are required to correct known deficiencies, caused by the age of the buildings and building systems.

The vote will allow the County to renovate the SURTS major mechanical, electrical, and plumbing systems, to modernize the dormitory rooms and office spaces, and to completely build-out the Annex to include a working kitchen and laundry facility.

The total estimated cost for this renovation is $26 million.

The County Board of Supervisors approved purchase of the parcels in September 2022. The County previously awarded a contract for architectural and engineering services in February 2023, and the design phase, including construction planning, is nearing completion. Construction is expected to begin in April 2025, with estimated completion in 2026.

National Caribbean-American Heritage Month

By Kaanchan S Farkiya

Each year, Caribbean American Heritage Month may emphasize different themes or focus areas, highlighting various aspects of Caribbean culture and the contributions of Caribbean Americans. These themes can help guide the events and educational programs organized during the month.

Cities with significant Caribbean American populations often host vibrant festivals and carnivals featuring colorful parades, traditional music, dance, and elaborate costumes. These events celebrate the unique cultural heritage of the Caribbean islands and bring communities together in joyous celebration.

Caribbean Americans come together to celebrate their heritage during Caribbean American Heritage Month, which is observed every June. This month-long celebration provides an opportunity for Caribbean Americans to honor their rich cultural backgrounds, share their traditions, and recognize the contributions they have made to American society.

Many Caribbean American organizations use this month to give back to their communities through service projects, health fairs, and outreach programs. These activities highlight the community spirit and collective efforts to support one another.

Caribbean cuisine is an integral part of the celebrations. Food festivals and cookouts offer a chance to enjoy traditional Caribbean dishes such as jerk chicken, curry goat, roti, plantains, and patties. These events often feature cooking demonstrations and competitions. Live performances of Caribbean music genres such as reggae, calypso, soca, salsa, and dancehall are central to the celebrations. Dance performances showcasing traditional Caribbean dances, as well as contemporary styles, are also popular.

Cities with significant Caribbean American populations often host vibrant festivals and carnivals featuring colorful parades, traditional music, dance, and elaborate costumes. These events celebrate the unique cultural heritage of the Caribbean islands and bring communities together in joyous celebration.

Caribbean American Heritage Month is a time for Caribbean Americans to come together and celebrate their rich and diverse heritage. Through festivals, educational events, culinary celebrations, community engagement, and online activities, they honor their cultural roots and share their traditions with the broader American society. This month-long observance not only celebrates the contributions of Caribbean Americans but also fosters a deeper understanding and appreciation of Caribbean culture and its impact on the United States.
